A home can be far more than just a place to live. This lovingly renovated farmhouse in Hegykő combines the tranquility of rural living with modern comfort and timeless character.

The property uniquely blends traditional charm with contemporary architecture and bright, inviting interior spaces. While the exterior harmoniously fits into the village atmosphere of Hegykő, the interior impresses with spacious, light-filled rooms and a thoughtfully designed layout that ensures a high level of living comfort.

The fully renovated house offers approximately 220 m² of living space with versatile possibilities for use. In total, the property features five rooms plus an additional half-room. The comprehensive renovation was completed in 2025, making the house ready for immediate occupancy.

A special advantage is the division of the house into two separate living areas. The front section can function independently and consists of two rooms, each with its own private bathroom, connected by a kitchen in between. This part of the house has been designed barrier-free, making it ideal for elderly family members or comfortable living without limitations.
